W. P. WALTON.

TO THE DEMOCRACY OF LINCOLN.

The Senatorial District Committee having fixed Saturday, May 16th, between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m., for the holding of precinct meetings to ascertain the choice of the people between the candidates for the Senate, I hereby call your attention to the matter and state the manner of procedure.

The precinct meeting shall be called to order and presided over by the County Committee of that precinct, if present, if not, the meeting shall be organized by electing its own chairman and secretary. Then the supporters of each candidate present shall be counted and the candidate receiving the majority shall be entitled to the entire vote of the precinct. Delegates shall then be appointed and the Secretary shall certify their names to the convention, which meets in Stanford May 23 at 1 o'clock. Each precinct shall be entitled to one vote for each 50 votes cast therein for Gov. Knott at the August election 1883 and one for every fraction over 25. Provided, that in any case every precinct shall be entitled to at least one vote, if such precinct cast as many as 5 votes.

Under this arrangement Crab Orchard shall be entitled to 4 votes; Walnut Flat to 2; Stanford to 11; Highland to 1; Wayneburg to 3; Turnersville to 3 and Hustonville to 5.

It is further suggested that in the selection of the chairman and secretary that a supporter of each candidate be chosen. Urging that there be a general turning out of the party and that none but known democrats be counted, I am respectfully,

J. E. LYNN, Com.

By W. P. Walton, Secy.

HORSEMEN AND HORSES.

By a Fanatic.

Elkhorn, 14 years old by Australian, dam Elkhorn, by Lexington, sold at Crab Orchard, Ill., for $1,000.

—Wonderment, Ten Bocker, Pearl Jennings and Favor were the winners of the Lexington races Saturday.

John B. Todd, Lexington, sold last week one saddle gelding for $502; one combined gelding for $400; one for $300 and one for $202.

Harry Gillmore, of Versailles, sold to Mr. Withers, Hopkinsville, a yearling by Simmons, dam by Flying Hiattoga, for $500.

—R. C. Pate's fleet gelding, Ascender, by Imp. Buckden, dam Ascension, by Australian, has broken down at Nashville, which destroys his chances for the Louisville Merchants stakes. Patecock broke down also and was sold for $200.

At the McFerran-Veech sale Granite Cell, of Danville, bought Nectar, 2 years old, by Nutwood, dam Galatea, for $953; and Nautica, 2 years old, by Nutwood, dam Nora Lee, for $505. W. E. McAlister, a former Danvillean, bought Greendale, 3 years old, by Princess, dam Florence, $510; and Harboud, 2 years old, $225. Lucas Brodhead, the competent and thoroughly gentlemanly agent at Woodburn, bought Heliopole, 2 years old, by Princess, dam Helle, for $800. The high est price a youngster was Progress, by Ponceast, who brought $2,059. L. L. Dorsey's Epaullette gave an exhibition of half mile trot in 1:37 1/4, 1st quarter, 34 1/4; 2d quarter, 33 1/4. Mr. Dorsey declined an offer of $10,000 for him. Wilkins, by Geo. Wilkes, dam Lady Patchen, sold for $2,000. The stock sold goes to many different States.

The running at Lexington has been so remarkably irregular that a satisfactory conclusion is likely hard to form. Freeman did a mile in 1:42 1/4; Biersan, mile and quarter, 2:08 1/4, which was much the best performance of the two. But then the track was fast. Then Ten Bocker gave Biersan a beating at the same distance in 2:10 1/4; track heavy. Joe Cotton, mile in 1:42; taken all in all was a better race than either of the above, save Ten Bocker's, and equal to that; and Ten Bocker's mile and eighth in 1:46 1/4 was good, but he only carried 91 pounds and he is a great horse, if after running the two races so recently he can win the Derby. Of the foregoing we like Joe Cotton's chance best, with Freeman for 2d. But of the horses that have been beaten I must be true that some were not quite up to their form and are dangerous, while of those that have not started, good reports are plentiful, but nothing can be positively known. Saken all together we think Joe Cotton, Irish Pat and Freeman will be the placed horses in the order named, with Biersan, Ten Bocker and Doubt close up. The latter, if he comes up to his form, we like as any horse. If Lizzie Dwyer keeps her form the Oaks is at her mercy, and the same may be said of Modesty, in the Merchant.

The Boston Globe says: "President Cleveland was elected by nearly five millions of democrats, and we firmly believe that he understands and appreciates that fact. They expect him to give the country a clean and honest administration, and he evidently means to do just that, nothing more, nothing less. The democratic party desired him to move slowly in the matter of changes, as they have had no wish for a revolution or violent shocks which would disturb and alarm the business men of the country. Consequently the party has been patient and willing to allow time for a thorough examination of details and a mastery of all the questions affecting the Administration."

—It can not be denied that a whipping-post law is gaining favor with the people. It is a good law, and petty thieves and wife beaters are none too good to feel the force of it.—[Glasgow Times.

NOTES OF CURRENT EVENTS.

—Queen Emma, of the Sandwich Islands, died at Honolulu April 25th.

—Snow to the depth of nearly three inches fell at Chardon, Ohio, Saturday.

—Patrick Hartner, a wife-murderer, has been sentenced to be hanged at Cincinnati, September 4.

—Gen. Jas. F. Robison, at a meeting of Directors of the Kentucky Racing Association, was unanimously re-elected President.

—E. O. Graves, Assistant Treasurer of the United States, has been appointed Chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

—Albert Jones, a noted negro desperado was sent to the penitentiary from Somerset for two years for shooting Bill Miller, of Danville.

—Portugal and Cocobolo, the two rebels who started the fire which burned Colon, were hanged amidst the ruins of that city Wednesday.

—Postmaster General Vilas has notified members of Congress that they must determine the postmasters of the fourth class for their respective districts.

—Dr. John E. W. Thompson, appointed Minister Resident and Consul General to Haiti, is a colored man, a native of Brooklyn and a graduate of Yale.

—The jury in the Tom Crittenden case for killing a negro in cold blood were discharged, standing 10 for acquittal and 2 for the penitentiary. It is generally thought he ought to be hung.

—The special election for State Senator in the Thirty-fourth Illinois district, to fill a vacancy caused by death, resulted in a Republican victory. This gives Logan 103 votes—enough to elect him.

—At Harrodsburg, the jury sentenced Harry McAfee to eight years in the penitentiary for killing John Claybourn last October. The grand jury also indicted Policeman Joe Crain for murder in killing Jake Donahue last week.

—The President has appointed Geo. V. N. Lothrop, of Michigan, to succeed Minister Taft at the Court of St. Petersburg. Mr. Lothrop is 60 years of age, and has been prominently identified with the legal profession. His residence is at Detroit.

—It has just been made public that Miss Sallie Reber, a well-known opera singer, who died near Jersey City in February, had been the mistress of Jas. D. Fish, the defaulting President of the Marine Bank, and that in giving birth to a child she lost her own life.

—In the year of 1777 considerable interest was manifested in an announcement that six stores had been completed in Philadelphia. The annual product of the stove foundries in that city is now valued at $4,000,000, and the industry supports about 12,000 people.

—The resignation of Mr. B. K. Bruce, the colored Register of the Treasury, was not unexpected. Mr. Bruce has that dreadful malady, Bright's disease of the kidneys, and will end his days in Switzerland. He has made an efficient official, and is an honor to his race. Mr. Bruce will most likely be succeeded by ex Congressman Dox, of Alabama.

—The democrats in Virginia scored a victory Saturday in the decision of the Supreme Court of Appeals affirming the constitutionality of the election law passed at the last session of the Legislature. This places the control of the entire election machinery of the State in the hands of the democrats, and has been resisted by the republicans on the ground that it was contrary to the principles of free government.

Judge Milton J. Darham, Kentucky's First Controller of the Treasury, is a marvel to the Washington officials. He also astonished the hotel clerks. He is up most mornings before six o'clock, takes his breakfast and sends off his private correspondence before eight, and gets in an hour's work at the Treasury before the clerks arrive. He likes to clear out the brushwood while it is quiet and before bustle and rush of visitors begins. He has already shaken up his department from centre to circumference and there is no longer any loading or playing off. It is his purpose to dispense with all unnecessary force, and he has already recommended a reduction where parties were put in to please political influences and have really nothing to do. A lady clerk brought a member of Congress to him a few days ago, and proudly presented him as her backer or "influence." The Judge said to her politely, but pointedly: "If your work is well done you need no other influence with me. That will show for itself." All Kentuckians who have visited Washington of late speak of Judge Darham's kindness and polite attention to them. The distinguished compliment paid him by the Administration has not spoiled him in the slightest.

MAKING IT EASY FOR HIS EMPLOYER

—A merchant went to his head clerk and said: "John, I owe about $10,000, and all I possess is $4,002, which is locked up in the safe. I am thinking that this is the right time to make an assignment, but what plausible pretext I can give my creditors I know not. You have plenty of brains; think the matter over and let me know your decision in the morning." The clerk promised to do so. On entering the office next morning the merchant found the safe open, the $4,000 gone, and in their place a letter which read as follows: "I have taken the $4,000 and gone to Canada. It is the best excuse you can give your creditors."—[Cleveland Sentinel.

THE BROTHERS.

An Entertaining and Instructive Serial Story,

Written Expressly for the Interior Journal.

BY MISS MILDRED LEWIS.

"Far from the mad luring crowd's ignoble strife."

—Gray.

In the outskirts of Harrodsburg, on the pike leading to Danville, there used to stand a frame house, with high, small windows and low porch; a yard inclosed by a pailing, an orchard stretching back, not a pretty place by any means; although flowers bloomed abundantly in the front yard and vines climbed about the porch. The house sadly needed paint and repairs; the fences were dropping down; the few out-houses were a shabby disgrace; everything seemed to need looking after.

Strangers passing, said a lazy man lived there, and a woman of uncommonly fine taste. But friends of the family, looked at it sadly and said, "What a pity that such a man should be consigned to poverty, when his talents would adorn wealth and make him the center of distinguished circles."

So they would, and in his present condition, without a profession, or any other suitable means of support, that was all for which Ustace Graham was fitted. Put him among friends, let him lose his habitual reserve, and Dr. Johnson was not more winning in conversation or more thoroughly versed in the various departments of learning. No Bash or Sheridan, Garrick, or Boswell hung on his words, but the elite of the neighborhood recognized his talents and paid him the most respectful deference and attention.

Strangers solicited his acquaintance. His plain room, which would have been shabby, but for the hand that trained the flowers and left its impress there, was often filled with men who came for the privilege of hearing him talk.

Thoroughly at home with the Academician or Paripatetic philosophers and in every field of science and letters, he was a helpless babe on a farm. Raised in wealth and indolence, without a profession, his youth spent in study and travel, middle age found him poor, an invalid from spinal affection, with worrying creditors and a host of friends who admired and pitied but did not help.

He was singularly beloved, unlike the brilliant man he so nearly resembled, he was gentle and modest. He was never known to tell a man "you don't see your way through the question," or "you don't know what you're talking about, sir," but in his disposition more resembled the teacher of the Athenian youth.

Mrs. Graham was a brave, sensible woman, devoted to her husband and children. She never fretted when reverses came, but as much as was possible took into her own hands the management of affairs, trusting that when her two boys grew up times would be better.

Henry, the eldest, was already fifteen, and gave promise of a noble and useful manhood. A handsome boy, his mother translated in the masculine gender; dark, sparkling eyes that held yours like a magnet and made you feel that they saw more than other eyes; not pleasant eyes in anger or scorn, but sparkling in mirth and mild enough when the wind didn't "set east;" a broad forehead with dark hair, a thin, firm, but pleasant mouth, a finely proportioned figure.

There you have him, a very handsome and very winsome boy, not an angel, but good enough and with a dash of something which doesn't savor of seraph wings. In time the father and mother saw the promise of future greatness. "He will bring back the glory which our families have lost, wife," said the invalid, "he has the intellect of the Grahames and spirit and will of the Thorntons; he will be the stay of our declining years and shed lustre on our white hairs."

"I never saw a boy make such progress in his studies. He has the power of rapidly grasping, and mastering a subject, of adapting forms and methods, which I have never seen in one of his age, no fear for him; he will succeed, but Edward—"

Hesitated involuntarily as he glanced at his younger son, at that moment lying on the porch floor, leaning on his elbow, one hand supporting his flaxen curly head, another holding an open book, his blue eyes on the distant sky.

"A second edition of myself, wife, a dreamer. This world isn't a good place for dreamers."

"Let him dream, now," said the mother, "action comes later, our duty is to see that he's prepared for it when it comes. He's too delicate to be pushed like Henry, there is time enough."

"You're partial to him," said the husband with a smile, for he knew that "was the resemblance to himself which caused it, "but as you say, there's time enough with a mother like you to look after him, direct his course and encourage him. If I had had such a mother I would not have led such a useless life."

As the invalid's chair was wheeled out of doors that he might have the benefit of the air and sunshine, the pale, thin face which leaned against its cushions and watched the boy as he went bravely about his duties would cloud over with regret.

"I should have done as he is doing, Mary, instead of dreaming away the hours over my books. Things would have been better for you, my dear, if I had."

"People were not all made to fill one place, Ustace. You were not made for manual labor, but to instruct; each has his allotted sphere and does no good outside of it. God has given your boys as a blessing. Why not take it as an omen that He is pleased with you? Don't fret over what is gone and can't be helped."

"Well, Mary, I have never seen you fret. A woman like you ought to have good and brave sons," said the invalid smiling and patting the hand on his arm.

"I was a happy family in spite of the incongruities. But changes come to all. One morning Mr. Graham was found dead in his chair. The wife was a widow with the chances of her share of a widow's treatment in the world, the two boys orphans."

The creditors closed in, for people must have their money; the little farm and stock were sold; the bereaved family bade their friends adieu and moved to a cottage near Danville.

CHAPTER II.

AT HOME.

"Dear Brutus it is not in our stars, But in ourselves."—Shakespeare.

It was a pretty little cottage to which the widow and her two boys went, about half a mile from the city and in view of the steeples and spires.

The house was entirely modern, of a buff color with red roof and gabled windows. A small, clean yard, full of shade trees, everything in the best order.

Henry felt that he must take his place as the head of the family. Edward was not able to give him much assistance, but was exceedingly anxious to help his brother in every way.

Never did heathen look on his stone gods with more worshipful of affection than Edward on his elder and stronger brother. In his eyes Henry couldn't do wrong. Everything belonging to him was as if set apart and sanctified. He followed him everywhere he went and seemed always to think of him before himself.

He was like a little girl about the house helping his mother in all of her duties; comforting her in his boyish way—which was a very gentle way too—doing the chores and making himself generally useful, but so quiet.

There was always an atmosphere of quietness about Edward. His face with the brooding, introspective eyes seemed never ruffled, the voice so soft and low, the light step; he carried that quiet air with him everywhere.

You are apt to overlook very quiet people, leave them undisturbed in corners, or wedge them off the seat. People are usually so self assertive that it's quite refreshing to meet with one who can be imposed on with impunity.

But people never seemed to feel in this way towards Edward. Little Miss Panks, a neighbor, expressed it when she said, "I can always feel Edward Graham's presence if I'd never seen him, I'd know it all the same; he seems like a part of one's self that one doesn't see often, and yet likes to be reminded of and told it's at home ready to be entertained."

As for Henry, his days were one incessant round of toil, his nights were divided between study and sleep. A book always went with him to the field and when he stopped to rest in the shade of some tree he spent the time reading.

The hope of a classical education could no longer be indulged. He must acquire as much learning as possible without a teacher, then take up a profession. But the regret which his inability to employ masters caused him can only be realized by an inspiring mind, which has fretted under like restraints.

Often in his boyish visions the rafters of his little room which were so near his head, expanded into a magnificent palace; he saw uplifted faces and heard the plaudits of an admiring crowd.

"Why should I not be what I wish?" he questioned himself as he tried to still the beating of his tumultuous heart. "The highest places in life have been honored by men handicapped on every side by opposition. I will succeed! I will! I will!" The lips set themselves in a tense line. "Nothing shall keep me down! poverty, malice or opposition!"

Too SLEEPY FOR SENTIMENT.—"And now as I am about to press my good night kiss on your sweet lips, I want to tell you that this is the happiest moment of my life," quizzically remarked the Lee Avenue dude, as he stood in Jerry's doorway holding fast the hands of Miss Lulu at two o'clock this morning.

"And mine too," murmured Lulu, as she suppressed a yawn.

"Your words hit me with delight; 'tis your trusting love that prompts you to utter them, is it not, darling?"

DISCUSSING the action of a trustee in pleading usury on money borrowed by one Shaw, the Mt. Sterling Sentinel Democrat expresses our sentiments exactly: "A man should pay what he agrees to pay whether for money or wheat. Mr. Shaw would not think of buying wheat at $1 per bushel and paying for it at the rate of 90 cents; and it is none the less dishonest to take a man's money at 8 per cent. and pay him but 6 per cent. True the law says 6 is legal, but the law is arbitrary and not moral, and it is just as dishonest and immoral to take advantage of this law as it is to sell liquors without license. Of course Mr. Shaw is not responsible for the action of his trustee and we make no reflection upon him. The point is that the man who loans money is entitled to just the same consideration as the man who borrows. The remedy is simple and plain if you object to paying usurious interest (so-called) don't agree to pay it. Borrow the money at 6 per cent. if you can. If not do without it or pay what you promise."

THE republican papers are making much ado over the fact that the money in the National treasury counted to within two cents of the amount claimed to be in it. No one ever doubted the result would be otherwise, though they claim that it is a complete reputation of the charge of stealing against the party which has been in power for the last 24 years. The stupendous swindling and stealing have appeared in the Boss Shepherd frauds, the Freedman's Bureau swindle, the Robeson naval fraud, the Sanborn contracts, the Indian and Pension Bureau frauds, the Star-Route and Hovgate frauds, the Burnside robbery, the Swain swindle and the Keifer business, whereby hundreds of millions have been put into the pockets of party favorites and contractors.

WE give in this issue an address to the voters of Lincoln county on the subject of the railroad aid question, which is to be submitted next Saturday, 16th, signed by a number of our most influential men and heaviest tax-payers, explaining the question and proving beyond a shadow of a doubt that it is to be the interest of every man in the county to secure the great thoroughfare through it. The facts and figures are given and they can not be refuted. We do not see how any reasonable man is not convinced that it is purely a matter of business with the profit on our side.

HON. BOYD WINCHESTER, having declined the Nice consulate, the President has given him something more in keeping with his deserts. He will go as Minister Resident and Consul General to Switzerland a much more important and lucrative position, worth $3,500 more than the other. Henry Watterson has just been to Washington. Sneers can put the two notes in his pipe and smoke them.

THE most disgusting business we have heard of for many a day is that of Eld. Sweeney, of Paris, ripping around trying to get signatures to a petition for a pardon for Hooker Stivers, who murdered Burt Scully and got off with the light sentence of two years. Sweeney should give up preaching and become an out and out advocate of murder.

THE Bourbon News makes a good point when it says: "Gov. Knott is in New York negotiating for the sale of $500,000 worth of State bonds to pay for prosecuting criminals which he has turned loose, and Lieutenant Governor Hindman it now being besieged on all hands to turn others loose. This business should put the common people to thinking."

THERE was no notoriety to be gotten out of the Mose Caton case so Acting Gov. Hindman let him hang at Morganfield, Friday. Caton's crime was not half so terrible at that committed by Neal, even if he did torture his wife to death. That was simply murder. Neal was guilty of arson, rape and murder.

DR. JOHN D. WOODS pays a touching tribute to the memory of his mother, who has just died in Mississippi at the advanced age of 80 years. Few of us have the consolation of a loving mother as long as Dr. Woods and few knew how well to appreciate the greatest of all treasures.

THE United States Army has one lieutenant general, three major-generals and six brigadier-generals in active service. Each head of the staff departments is also a brigadier-general. Two generals, five major-generals and twenty-four brigadier-generals are on the retired list.

JIM BLACKBURN is not to be Collector after all, it is said. So look out for another prediction from Joe about the probability of the result of the next Kentucky election. He will no doubt raise the republican majority now to 100,000.

FATE seems to be against the coming of the Swiss Minister to this county. Last year a railroad accident in which he was hurt prevented him and now we learn by a Washington dispatch that he is in Washington too sick with the malarial fever to come at present.

THE President has appointed Dr. Thompson, a colored man to the Haytian Mission, making three colored men appointed to important and lucrative positions as far as this does not look like that race is to be returned to slavery.

SCORE another for First Comptroller Oarham. He refuses to approve the accounts of the Marshal of the Northern District of New York as they are not right. Several thousand dollars are involved.

OUR CHANCE

To Secure Another Railroad for Lincoln County.

What the Advocates Have to Say to the People

In Behalf of the Great Enterprise.

AN ADDRESS TO THE VOTERS & TAX-PAYERS.

You have already been officially advised that on the 16th of this month you will be given an opportunity to decide whether or not Lincoln county shall become one of the projectors in the building of a line of railroad from Stanford to Nashville, Tenn. The substance of the question to be voted on is whether or not this county will acquire the right-of-way, depot and shop grounds in this county, the cost of all, in no event to be more than $25,000, and when so acquired to sell and assign the same to the Chesapeake & Nashville Railroad Company at such price and on such terms as may be agreed upon between this Company and the county's Commissioners.

The advocates of this proposition believing that the building of this road will be of the greatest conceivable advantage and interest to Lincoln county and knowing that the carrying of the proposition at the coming election is absolutely necessary to ensure its location and building through Lincoln county, have requested us in their behalf to present this address in its favor for the consideration of the voters and tax-payers of the county.

Its intention is not only to show what are conceived to be the beneficial results to be derived from the carrying out of this great enterprise, but likewise to correct false and misleading impressions and statements which have been and are now being actively circulated in regard thereto by the opponents of the measure for the purpose of influencing the voice of the people at the coming election. These statements are not believed to be intentionally false by any one opposing the proposition in good faith, but made through a mistake of facts.

It is represented that the proposed road is part of one of the greatest railroad corporations in the United States and that the county in acquiring the interest mentioned and disposing of it to the Chesapeake & Nashville Railroad Co., will only be making a donation to the great and rich railroad corporation which is the "power behind the throne" and that the latter will not be in the least influenced in the location and building of the proposed road by a meagre donation which can in no event be more than a fractional part of $25,000. This argument is untrue, misleading and unfair to the utmost extent towards the Chesapeake & Nashville which is a young company struggling to get upon its feet. Its paid up capital is small, inadequate by far for the construction of the long line of road from Stanford to Nashville and not sufficient to float its bonds at par upon the money market unless the people owning the territory which it traverses shall give it encouragement and aid by grants of rights-of-way, &c., upon the most easy and liberal terms. It is vitally important to this company's success that such encouragement and aid shall be secured and it is driven to the necessity of going where they can be procured, and the oft repeated boast by the opponents of this proposition that it is bound to come to Stanford for one of its terminal points is untrue. The company is bound to go where it can obtain assistance, and if the false idea that it is bound to come to Stanford is acted upon by our people so as to defeat this proposition at the coming election, a great opportunity will be lost and the road, which is sure to be built somewhere through this section of the State, will not be built through Lincoln county. It is not denied that the road may ultimately become a part of a great railroad system—the greatest in the South or upon the continent. It is hoped that it may and the reasons therefor will be further mentioned.

It seems to us that the argument by our opponents that the burden of taxation in the county will be greatly increased by carrying out the proposition is being most unfairly used, and incidentally in connection therewith statements are being made which are not authorized by facts and circumstances nor justified by the experience of county affairs. It is asserted that the friends of the enterprise are industriously laboring among the poorer classes, those who pay only a poll tax, to influence them to vote for the proposition and thereby impose against the property holders a burdensome ad valorem tax. This statement, the friends of the proposition are informed, is being industriously circulated among the property holders to influence them adversely. On the other hand it is, as we are informed, being industriously circulated among those who own no taxable property that the cost of the proposed right-of-way, &c., is to be paid wholly by the imposition of a poll. Both are absolutely untrue and those making both or either of these statements are not justified in doing so either in fact or in reason, as we will show.

To acquire the interest demanded by the proposition at the maximum cost of $25,000 would not increase the present rate of taxation.

This we will make so plain and manifest that it can not be controverted.

The present bonded indebtedness of the county is $7,000. Five years ago it was $22,000. Out of this year (1885) if at the same rate as the last five years, 20 cents ad valorem and $1 per capita, this bonded indebtedness will be reduced to $5,000. This is a period of six years in which the county has discharged a bonded debt of $18,000, with the present rate of taxation. During the same period it will have paid in aid of turnpike and bridge construction over $15,000, making in all $33,000 paid by the county in six years out of its resources derived from its present rates. If it should require as much as $25,000 to pay for the right-of-way, &c., the indebtedness of the county will be $30,000 and experience has proven that this can be paid under present rate of taxation within six years.

If the county should continue to aid and promote the building of turnpikes and bridges, which is not improbable and to which it is by its past conduct committed, the amount to be paid within the next six years will of course be greater than $30,000. But in any event the county can give all necessary aid to turnpike and bridge building and pay this debt within ten years at the present rate of taxation, which is lighter than in any other county in the State. The supposed increase of taxation is the only serious objection urged against the proposition. To those urging these we appeal to consider the foregoing statement which is fully sustained by the records of the county court.

The other objection that no aid should be given out of the public purse to corporations we consider altogether sentimental, and is wholly at variance with the past policy of this county consistently followed greatly to public benefit, for more than fifty years and a number of those now opposing this railroad enterprise have been among its most active advocates and its direct beneficiaries.

During the period mentioned the county court has, with almost the unanimous approbation and demands of the tax payers of the county, expended through the instrumentality of corporations about seventy thousand dollars in building turnpikes and bridges. It has been a judicious expenditure as has been fully proven by results; nevertheless persons who best know and have profited most by these results are now opposing this policy to aid a great enterprise which if carried out to completion, will in the estimation of all who have considered it with unprejudiced reason, do more to advance the wealth and prosperity of the county than any public improvement ever undertaken within its limits.

It has been suggested that the road when completed will become a part of Huntington's great system. This is not improbable and is to be desired. In such an event it would be part of a great trunk line under one management and direction extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It would give the county three great trunk lines traversing its very heart and the three great rival railroad corporations of the South would be competitors for our carrying trade. It would give the county railroad advantages and facilities equal to if not greater than any county south of the Ohio river. The competition in freight traffic alone, which it would inevitably provoke, would result in a saving to the farmers alone, annually, more than the whole amount asked by this proposition to acquire a right-of-way for the Chesapeake & Nashville. We are justified in this prediction by the experience of the last ten years. The following table shows approximately the shipment of wheat and product of wheat for the years mentioned, in bushels:

|------------------------------|---------|---------|---------|
| Stanford & Richmond Junction | 69,000 | 20,000 | 15,000 |
| Crab Orchard | 15,000 | 12,000 | 15,000 |
| Halls Gap | 5,000 | 5,000 | 4,000 |
| Shelby City | 20,000 | 15,000 | 18,000 |
| Moreland | 15,000 | 12,000 | 15,000 |
| McKlinney | 29,000 | 20,000 | 20,000 |
| Gilberts Creek | 10,000 | 5,000 | 10,000 |
| Total | 155,000 | 122,000 | 130,000 |

Previous to the construction of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad our lowest rate of freight on grain to Cincinnati was 26 cents per hundred. After the opening of that road it was reduced the first season to 18 cents and has been maintained at the latter rate ever since until the opening of the Kentucky Central railroad to Richmond Junction, since which the rate from that station to Cincinnati has been as low as 12 cents, but from all other stations the old rate of 18 cents has been maintained with only one or two variations. Comparison will show therefore that the construction of the Cincinnati Southern saved the farmers of Lincoln county in wheat alone: In 1882, $6,900; in 1883, $5,876; in 1884, $6,528; in the three years, $19,304, and to farmers in the neighborhood of Stanford and Richmond Junction in 1883 and 1884, on wheat alone, the difference between the rates prevailing previous to the construction of the C. S. railroad, $9,240. Difference in rates since the opening of the K. C. railroad on wheat shipped from Stanford and Richmond Junction is a saving to the farmers in 1883 and 1884 of $3,960.

This advantage to the farmers in the neighborhood of Stanford and Richmond Junction grows out of the competition in rates since the completion of the Kentucky Central.

We have not had time nor opportunity to obtain the statistics on all freight, but our investigation has been sufficient to inform us that there has been a corresponding reduction on all and it is safe to claim that in freight alone since the completion of the Cincinnati Southern to all the people of Lincoln county a saving far in excess of $25,000 per annum. During the same period the value of property as shown by the tax books has increased more than half a million of dollars and if we add the value of the road itself more than a million, whilst the population has increased more than 20 per cent. Observation teaches us that like good results follow in the pathway of all such enterprises and we can most confidently expect as much, may more, from the construction of the Chesapeake & Nashville. Its property in the county after five years will be assessed for taxation at not less than $500,000. During this period we believe it will be directly instrumental in increasing the taxable value of the property in the county as much more. So at the end of five years we may safely estimate that the county revenue (at the present rate of taxation will by the building of this road, be permanently increased to the extent of $2,000 per annum. The immediate good results will be an expenditure in the county for labor, material and provisions of over $300,000, to be immediately followed by the employment at good wages, of more than a hundred able-bodied men to operate and keep the road in repair. Already there is expended by the other roads for these purposes, according to the best estimates to be obtained, near one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. At least fifty thousand dollars we think will be added to this sum by the building of the proposed road, all of which will be for the benefit of the laboring classes.

It will make the county a great railroad centre and a centre of interest for enterprise and investment and tend to attract hither capital, population, enterprise and intelligence.

It will give an impetus to business of every kind and with all its advantages will not bring us one single evil or misfortune. It will increase the population of our towns, thereby giving us better and more extensive markets at home. Hustonville will be built up by being made the center of trade for a large and rich agricultural community, and perhaps with its natural advantages a flourishing manufacturing town. Crab Orchard in like manner and by being made with this opportunity one of the most attractive summer resorts in the State. Stanford by being the capital of a county rich in natural resources and advantages and being the connecting point of three great railroad systems, numberless advantages might accrue which would be directly attributable to the completion of this enterprise, which would cost us nothing, but actually bring money to the private and public purse.

But, say our opponents, it is against principle. This we deny. It is purely a proposition and matter of business, in which is only involved the question of whether we shall invest a sum not exceeding $25,000, with every reasonable prospect of speedy magnificent returns in profits and savings, or stand with full pockets and empty, idle hands and see a golden opportunity glide beyond our grasp. But let us admit that it may be against principle for the sake of argument. The opportunity is a grand and exceptional one, such as is not offered oftener than once in one generation and it is the office of principle to courtesy to such an opportunity, for the principle will live permanently and the opportunity is short-lived and will be lost.

The signers of this address have no purpose in view further than to promote the interests of the whole county in common with their own. They believe their own interests will be promoted by the building of the road and their own interests are identical with those of the other people of the county. After careful investigation they are convinced that a rare opportunity is presented to the people of this county of promoting their interests almost beyond reckoning and this without costing them one cent when the balance is struck, and before voting to throw away this opportunity we ask them in behalf of those who are to live in the future, to pause and consider—make inquiry and be advised—and act deliberately, impartially and without prejudice in deciding what we consider the most important question that can ever influence the welfare and business future of the county.

ANOTHER FIRE.—At an early hour Saturday, the residence of Capt. E. T. Rochester, in the western suburbs, was discovered to be on fire, which had so far progressed that to arrest it or save much of the furniture, was an impossibility, and it was soon a smoldering mass of ashes. The fire caught from the kitchen as is supposed from a coal which was dropped by the cook in carrying a shovel-ful to her cabin. Fortunately the building and furniture were insured for $3,300 in the London, Liverpool & Globe, Mrs. Rochester having been driven to the step by a similar loss by her sister a few months ago. It had just been recovered by the carpenter and the painter and was valued at $4,000, the furniture at $1,500. Capt. Rochester and his family will live for the present part at Col. Welch's and the rest at Hon. G. A. Lackey's.

THE City Council are engaged in the foolish task of trying to widen Main street in the portion occupied by residences. They are wide enough there for every use and it is only in the business portion of the street that it is too narrow. THE STANFORD CREAMERY.—A practical demonstration of the capability of this important institution which is located near the Buffalo Mills, was made Saturday afternoon in the presence of the directors most of the stockholders and a host of others and was most satisfactory in every particular. In the absence of the gentleman who is to do the butter making, Mr. Graves, Mr. J. M. Brent, the proprietor, of the Chicago Creamery Association and builder of the creamery, though rarely ever attempting the business himself, showed the workings of the establishment from the time the cream is put into the vat till it is taken out of the churn and ready to be prepared by the huge butter worker. The inability to obtain a sufficient amount of cream was somewhat a drawback to a successful exhibition, but even with that the expectations of the most sanguine were realized. The churning occupied just 31 minutes, and while butter can be made in less than 5 minutes, 40 is the average time taken to give it that hardness and compactness which makes creamery butter so much more valuable than the ordinary kind. Besides the 3 of an acre of land and a building 28x50 feet with three air chambers around it, Mr. Brent had furnished and placed in position a six horse engine and eight horse boiler, 3 cream vats of 200 gallons each, 2 churns of 200 gallons each and all the necessary utensils for handling, weighing, trying and preparing the butter for market. The water is pumped from the never failing Buffalo Spring and pipes convey it hot or cold to all parts of the working room, which has elevated and sloping floors, so that every part can be washed out in a minute. There are an office, refrigerator room, ice house, coal room and other necessities for convenience and cleanliness. The ventilation is perfect and everything is first-class in construction. The capacity is 1,500 pounds of butter per day and there is no sort of doubt that the establishment will pay a big dividend, if the necessary amount of cream can be obtained. Wagons are now traversing every route in the section and so soon as the farmers are satisfied that they can make more money selling cream at 20 cents a gallon, which is about 50 cents per gallon, and get the pay in money instead of trade, there will be no trouble about the cream in this fine stock country. The property has been formally turned over to the company by Mr. Brent, who not only received the full amount of his contract price, but was highly complimented by the directors for the excellence and completeness of his work. Those who have had dealings with him speak of him as a fair and honest man and it gives us pleasure to add our personal commendation of him as a man and gentleman. The Creamery Co., have been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. I. Mac Bruce as Manager and of Mr. W. E. Graves, an expert, highly recommended as a butter maker.

IN this issue we begin the publication of a serial story, written for the INTERIOR JOURNAL by the talented and accomplished, Miss Mildred Lewis, of this place, whose writings have already created considerable attention. She always manages to impress some particular idea either original or otherwise on the reader and in this production she labored especially to that end with fine effect. The scene being laid in our neighboring counties of Mercer and Boyle will give it a local interest and a charm not experienced in reading of the usual sea side or mountain crag scene.

NO entertainment yet given at the Opera House here has elicited such entire satisfaction as that of the Rycoes Swiss Bell Ringers & Specialty Company, last Friday and those who staid away because there was no brass band and donkey business feel badly left. The programme was chuck full of the sweetest music, both vocal and instrumental and mirth which kept the audience either laughing or applauding throughout. The gentlemanly manager, Mr. Ray L. Royce, is a genuine comedian and his specialty business was a show in itself. Web Lansing, who is equal to a whole brass band, playing as he does on seven instruments at once, also did some clever character acting, while Misses Lizzie Royce and Nellie Hoskins favored the audience with several vocal solos and duets, which were loudly applauded. The other members were more than ordinary in their respective parts. As proprietor of the hall we never had dealings with nicer ladies and gentlemen and it gives us pleasure to recommend Mr. Royce and his company to the amusement loving people.

A MOTTO FOR THE PARLOR WALL.—Flirtation is damnation. When I see at the evening hour on Broadway, New York, or Fulton street, Brooklyn, as gentlemen return from business, a group of young women with a conspicuous manner, and giggling, that is intended to attract attention of the masculine passerby, a horror strikes through my soul, and I say I wonder if the parents of these young people are aware of this. They have some 40 head, all young, and some of them perfect specimens of bovine beauty. Mr. Carson is an enthusiast on the subject of Jerseys, and is never happier than when handling his milk-eyed proteges. His system of training is admirable, and he has succeeded in demonstrating that this strain of cattle, which generally bears the reputation of incorrigible viciousness, may with proper handling be rendered harmless and kindly as kittens. In fact few families in the land have their children as carefully taught and as thoroughly trained as Carson has his Jerseys.

—According to notice, Eld. McGarvey entertained our people on the evenings of Friday and Saturday with his interesting lecture on Palestine. Mr. McG. is a close observer and tells his story in a most attractive style. He studied his subject as a Christian philosopher, and sheds great light on that ancient, interesting, historic and prophetic land. The stereoscopic views by means of which he illustrates his themes, are strikingly natural, and impart a reality to the various parts of the lecture which could not be obtained from the most vivid description. On Sunday Mr. McG. reviewed the return of the Jewish race from captivity, giving a beautiful description of the mysterious and typical Jordan, the significant incidents and conflicts of the wanderers, the missions of Moses and Joshua and the eventual history of that strange people.

METAL POISON.

I am a coppermouth by trade and during a series of years of use (being here when at work) have absorbed a wonderful amount of metal poison. Having a scrupulous tendency from my youth, the small particles of copper and brass would get into the pores, and by this process the poison was conveyed into my blood till my whole system became infected. I was treated with the old remedies of mercury and iodine potassium. Salvation followed, my teeth are all loose in my head, my digestive organs deranged and I have been helpless in bed for over a year, with mercurial rheumatism. My joints were all swollen and I lost the use of my arms and legs and became helpless as an infant. My sufferings became intense, but it was impossible for me to rest. The doctors advised me to go to the city hospital for treatment. This I could not bear. A friend, who has proved a friend indeed, urged me to try Swift's Specific, believing that it would cure me. Others discouraged me, but I secured a few bottles and have now taken two dozen bottles. The first effect of the medicine was to bring the poison to the surface and I broke out all over in running sores. These soon disappeared and my skin cleared off. My knees, which had become twice their natural size, have resumed their usual size and are supple as of yore. My arms and hands are all right again and I can use them without pain. The entire disease has left all parts of the body, save two ulcers on my wrists, which are healing rapidly. I am weak from long confinement but I have the use of all my limbs. This medicine is bringing me out of the greatest trial of life and I can not find words sufficient to express my appreciation of its virtues and the gratitude I feel that I ever heard of it.

Malarial Poison.

The drought in Southwest Georgia last spring dried up the wells and we were compelled to use water from the creek on the plantation. The result was that all were troubled with the chills and fever. I carried with me several bottles of Swift's Specific, and as soon as I took it I had perfect health. As soon as I ceased taking it I like the rest was afflicted with chills. When I resumed its use I was all right again. We have used it in our family as a preventive for malarial poison for two or three years and have never known it to fail in a single instance.

GENUINE POETRY.

Notwithstanding the Poet is Without Education or Culture.

Some Western Geniuses.

WAGON MOUND, MO. CO.,
NEW MEXICO, May, 1885.

[To the Editor of the Interior Journal.]

One of the characters indigenous in the western country is Capt. Jack Crawford, or as he is generally called "Captain Jack," and whose friendship I have formed since my arrival here over a year ago. He is a poet, scout, actor, miner, ranchman and now post-trader and postmaster at Fort Craig and about the last specimen of the kind that the world will ever see, as the occasion for their production has happily passed; no Indian war, no fifteen hundred miles from civilization, &c. At the first glance his long hair and Byronic collar would cause a feeling of contempt, but his clear, blue eye, and open handed action, disarms you of first impression very quickly. He was the noble Carter's favorite scout and who found his remains after the massacre by the terrible Apache Indians. He has written some very pretty verses and I feel convinced that you will appreciate his original but unique stanzas entitled "Rattling Joe's Prayer" upon the death of his friend Monte Bill, at Canby.

RATTLING JOE'S PRAYER.

"Rattling Joe was the next of the speakers
An' Joe was a friend of the dead
The salt water stood in his peepers
An' these are the words that he said:
"Just give him a corner good Lord—not on stocks,
For I ain't said a damned word as that
To say for anything worldly for Bill
Cause he'd put me up then for a drink.
I'm lost on the rules of your game, but I'll ax
For a seat far him back of the throne
An' I'll bet my whole stack that the boy'll behave
If yer angels list let him alone.
There's nothing but 'bout him unless he gets riled
The boys'll all back me in that—
But if any one treats on his corns then you bet
He'll fight at the drop of the hat—
Just don't let the angels run over him, Lord,
Nest him in kinder gentle and mild on the start
An' he'll make you no trouble, I think.
An' couldn't you give him a pack of old cards
To amuse himself once in a while?
But I warn you right here not to bet on his game,
Or he'll get right away with yer pile."
Mons. Hays, Harie and Miller will have to pass when they read the prayer.
It recites very feelingly, and his "Custer" lost none of its charms when he repeated it for me.

"CUSTER."

There's a spot in the woodland
My heart longs to see,
Where streamlets are dancing
With laughter and glee,
Where the sweetest of birds
And the daisies are seen
And the deer loves to sport
On its mantle of green.

The singular part to me is that Captain Crawford never attended school a day in his life and yet his book of poems has many beautiful gems in it. While proxy ourselves, we think we see an exquisite sentiment in his lines.

"Is there no poetic beauty
In these simple songs of mine?
Must a man be born in college,
Ere he dares to turn a rhyme?
Though his soul dictates the music,
Yet his words uncouth and plain
Must not find a friendly welcome
From the learned men of brain."

By the way, some of the Mexicans even yet plow with the rope around the horns of the oxen instead of using the yoke. The plow is all wood and cut from a forked tree. The women do the plowing amongst the low class of Mexicans and they make the walls and doors of the abode houses smooth and nice, but it is not only an odd, but cruel sight to me.

We witnessed a funeral procession in Sycamore that was out in accordance with the eastern custom. The coffin was in a plain box and put on an express wagon and by the side of the driver sat a man playing a lively air on the violin, while two men sat in the rear of the wagon with their legs dangling down, chatting and laughing as if going to a dance. Ah, well, it is better to laugh than be sighing.

As your section is largely interested in the cattle business, will write soon giving full information on this important point. Truly yours,
A. G. STALNAKER

THE LOUISVILLE MAIDEN AND MEMPHIS MAN. A Louisville girl who was visiting here a short time ago scored a signal triumph over a fresh young society man of this city. They were sitting on a sofa together and the conversation progressed he showed his arm to gradually fall down until he had it around her waist. She arose very indignant and he made the following explanation and apology: "I hope you will not think anything of this. It is just a way I have. All the Memphis boys act the same way, and you will have to get used to it. I hope you will not take any offence at it as it's just my way."

She left the room but came back in a few minutes with a married friend and sat down on the sofa again. Soon she began to yawn and give any ostensible proof of being thoroughly bored. Finally she said: "I'm dreadfully sleepy and I hope you'll go home. You mustn't take any offence at this. All the Louisville girls act the same way. You are exceedingly tiresome and you had better go home at once. Don't be offended at this. It is simply a way I have."

He stood not upon the order of his going. —(Memphis Sunday Times.)

W. W. Cole, the prince of modern showmen, estimates his advertising expenses for the season of 1885, at the enormous sum of $150,000. Last year, upward of $100,000 was thus spent, resulting in a season's profit of nearly half a million dollars. Mr. Cole believes in the efficacy of printers' ink judiciously applied.

NEW YORK DOG SHOW.

NINE HUNDRED AND FIFTY HOWLING DOGS IN MADISON SQUARE.

Pictures of Women's Pets and Man's Defenders—Ranging From Lion-like Mastiffs to Toy Terriers.
"Man's Best Friend."

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, May 7.—The Westminster Kennel club have been holding their ninth annual bench show in New York. Why a dog show is called a bench show is something your correspondent has never yet been able to find out. We might be told that it is because the dogs are kept in cages that are mostly ranged upon benches. But so are cabbages and squashes at a country fair. Nobody ever calls a display of squashes a bench show. I give it up.

There were 960 dogs on exhibition this year at the old Madison Square garden. They are beautiful creatures, except the bull and pug dogs. These look as if they had been hit a "hat" in the nose respectively, while they were young and soft, and their noses had been punched in and got dry that way, and had remained so ever since. However, there are those who consider the pug a model of doggy beauty, and hug and kiss and cuddle him as if he was a baby. You see how it is in the picture.

BABY MINE.

Mr. John Hove has about 30 pugs in his kennel at Long Branch. There are some 40 varieties of the dog family represented in the show. Here is the poodle, who is all hair, and the little Mexican dog who has no hair at all. Here is the mastiff, who is all jaw, and an iron jaw, too, it looks like; the Newfoundland, who is all brain, the pointer and hounds, who are all nose, and the Bull pup,

GREYHOUND AND BULL DOG HEADS. who has no nose at all, seemingly, but just a wicked-looking mouth and teeth, that remind one of an Irishman in Nast's cartoons. The prize bull pup in the collection is "Satan," who looks enough like his name to be it, except that he is white instead of black, the orthodox color for such as he. He is 11 months old and valued at $500, which is cheap, considering. He looks the very best of wickedness, does Satan, as if saint or sinner would have a tough time in his clutches. Here next you see the

It is a favorite German breed of dogs "Doehshund" is a word meaning much the same as "house dog," but it is applied to particular species. The animal is a brainy dog, with forelegs that look like a pair of stove legs.

Dog breeding is becoming a more and more favorite and profitable occupation in the eastern states. Specimens from many different kennels are at the exhibition. The principal ones are the Westminster, Ashmont, Nevernack Lodge, Cranmore, Hermitage and Winklaw kennels. From Massachusetts comes the Kilmarnock collie kennel. The collie is the famous Scotch shepherd dog.

COLLIE.

This is a very good illustration of the type. They are now largely employed on our western plains by the great sheep herders. On one immense ranch I know of a brave old female collie that was accustomed to be taken out with the flock in the morning, leaving her litter of puppies at home. She watches the sheep all day, gave the frisky young one a nip when they tried to stray, and kept them all together. At night the faithful creature brought them home, unaided alone, to the shepherd. Then she hurried a fast as she could to her own babies, from which she had been separated all day. She did not even stop to eat her supper first. There was something so very human about the thing.

A "cunning" little creature around which a great crowd gathered was "Kobe," a Japanese spaniel, and the prize dog in his class. He belongs to Mrs. Eugene Clarke, wife of the tenor. He is a little black and white fellow, with the well known blue-blooded crescent mark upon his nose. He took first prize at a show of amateur dogs, so to speak. Now he is entered as a regular professional cat-tracker in a silk draped and cushioned cage. Below him hangs a basket of flowers sent by Marion Booth, niece of Edwin Booth.

THAT HACKING COUGH can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it. For sale by Penny & McAllister.

in honor of his taking the prize. Kobe is two years old. For the first year of his life he lived only on rice and a certain grated fish imported from Japan. He has a soft, pretty coat that looks like a Japanese carpet in ivory. This is the king of the pet dogs. He is already known to fame, having appeared with his master in the operas of "Oliver" and "Bills Taylor." Moreover, J. K. Emmet, the actor, wanted to buy him and offered $1,500, which his mistress refused. Fancy it.

SOMETHING TO LOVE.

This is the poodle, the sweet little doggy the ladies love. With his silky velvet cushion he is a regular dude of a dog—in fact, only second to the real dude in the affections of the ladies. His cushion is crimson, yellow or blue, to suit his complexion, and is trimmed with ribbons to match. He has silky hangings about his gut cage. He eats the choicest cake and the most expensive chocolates, and has nothing to do but look beautiful and be petted.

Very nice, no doubt. But somehow there is a perverse kink in my soul. Whenever I see a pet dog taken up Fifth avenue in a carriage for an airing, I cannot admire him. I ought to be thinking of the human babies that are beaten and starved and strangled and drowned every day in this howling, wicked city of New York. I'm not a very good sort of person, either, but it always seems to me that a rich woman who will love and pet and pamper a dumb dog, instead of one of these outcast babies, will have a kind of sin to answer for, somehow.

ST. BERNARD.

You remember the brave dogs that used to rescue belated and freezing travelers in the snow storms on the Alps? Very well; here you see one of the same family. They and the Newfoundland and the mastiffs are the most magnificent specimens of the canine tribe. Observe the St. Bernard is so tall that the top of his head reaches above the man's waist. The color of the St. Bernard is tawny, like a lion, with white spots. Sometimes the tawny tint is so deep as to be brown, and there is occasionally one brindled and spotted with black. There are two kinds, the rough and smooth-coated. The one in the illustration belongs to the rough-coated family.

In the next picture is a good specimen of a smooth coated St. Bernard.

IMPETUOUSNESS AND DIGNITY. Notice the royal indifference of the great St. Bernard to the yapping little terrier.

A dog circus and dog procession in the ring in the evening was one of the attractive features of the show. The performing dogs were remarkable. When the great mastiffs and St. Bernards and Newfoundlands and tall hounds were brought out and trotted around the ring by their chains it somehow made you think of stories of the old Roman amphitheatre.

"BANG BANG."

This handsome fellow is called "Bang Bang" because he is a bird dog. He is one of the famous pointers of the country, imported from England. He is four years old, has won a number of puppy prizes in England, Belgium and Germany, and two big dog prizes since he got his growth. In the next cage to him snoozes "Sensation," an old pointer of 11 years, who has taken seven prizes—11 in England and 18 in the United States. "See the nose of him," said an enthusiastic sportsman of "Sensation." Sure enough, it is a nose for a nose, decidedly.

Following is the picture of an animal which will be new to most readers, probably. It is the DEERHOUND.

It is the largest of the tribe, except the bloodhounds. It has a very long, sharp nose. In color it is usually a brindle gray, and it is much more shaggy than the other hounds. It has a very sparkling, enthusiastic eye. The deerhound is almost as tall as the St. Bernard or the mastiff. Large as he is, he is a great favorite with ladies. Both the first and second prizes in this class were taken by dogs belonging to women.

Please examine the label on which your name is printed and remit us the amount you owe if you are in arrears.

On entering the garden you were apt to imagine you were in pandemonium. Such a howling, yelping, barking and wailing as there was! It was absolutely indescribable. Amid the din one could distinguish a deep baying that sort of fearful sound. It came from the mastiff kennel at the north side. The mastiff is the most lion-like dog of all. His face, with its watchful eyes and its deep, hanging jaws, is full of expression, both of fierceness and majesty. The mastiffs are tremendous in size. They weigh sometimes as high as 250 pounds—as much as two small men. They are of a dun color with black around their jaws and faces, and are smooth haired.

The immense value set upon these blooded canines is another point that will impress itself. They sell for as much as a likely slave would have done in the old times. From $500 to $1,000 is no unusual price at all to be paid for one of them.

Finally it is surprising, glancing over the catalogue, to find how many of these fine dogs are owned by women. Next to woman, man loves a dog, but next to a man woman loves a dog. Is it not so?

RAILROAD AID QUESTION.

The Lincoln County Court at its April term, 1885, made an order submitting to the qualified voters of the county, at an election to be held in the several voting precincts of the county, on Saturday, May 10th, 1885, the following question:—

"Whether the county of Lincoln shall issue bonds to an amount not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars on the credit and responsibility of the whole county, to be expended in acquiring title to the right of way over a strip of land through the county of Lincoln, beginning at or near Stanford or Richmond Junction and extending thence westward by or near to Hustonville to the Casey county line, upon the general width of not more than seventy-five feet, and such additional grounds as may be needed for the purpose and such land at Stanford as may be needed for depot buildings, machine shops, round houses, water supply and such other buildings and structures as may be useful to said railroad, and to permit the county to dispose of said property when so acquired to said Railroad Company upon such reasonable terms and in such manner as to compensation as may be agreed upon by said county, through its Commissioners, and said Railroad Company, as permitted by an Act of the General Assembly of Kentucky, entitled 'An Act to authorize Lincoln county to raise money to aid in the construction of a railroad through said county,' approved May 1, 1884."

The undersigned were appointed a committee by the Court and directed to have the above stated action of the Court published for the information of the voters of the county, and we have adopted this method of performing that duty.

His Loss was Her Gain. "Well, ma'am," said a fashionable physician to a wealthy lady patient, if you don't like my prescription, perhaps you had better try Parker's Tonic or some other quack stuff. "You don't mean it, Doctor," she answered, but your advice may be good for all that. Sometimes what you call quack stuff is the best and most scientific medicine, after all." She got a bottle of Parker's Tonic and it cured her of a nervous arising from disordered stomach and nerves. She told her friends and now they all keep a doctor at home in the form of Parker's Tonic.

ON TIME!

My celebrated saddle horse breeder, On Time, will make the season of 1885 at my stables near the Knob Lick pike, 4 miles from Shelby City, at $10 to insure a colt till weaning time.

LEVI HERRICK.

GILT EDGE!

This fine young saddle stallion I have concluded to let a limited number of mares at the low price of

TEN DOLLARS!

Which money I will expend on his education after the season is over by placing him in the hands of some good saddle horse man, only to steady him in his gait, for he has them naturally. I expect to exhibit him at the Fair. Gilt Edge is 3 years old this spring, dark bay or brown, 15 1/2 hands high and a perfect model in form. He was sired by one of the noted old Denmark family, Levi Hubble's On Time, foaled by one of the grandest horses ever known in any country, Colby's Old Lexington, a horse that has taken more premiums than any horseman will tell you so, therefore we should not let the strains of these two families run down. His 2nd dam was by Faulkner's Young America. Uncle Peter Gentry says he was the best breeder that ever stood in Boyle county. Third dam by Taylor's Messenger.

STEVE WALKER!

This fine young Jack will also make the season of 1885 at my stable, one mile from Stanford on the Hustonville pike, at $8 to insure a Living Colt.

Steve Walker is a brown with white points, 13 hands high, 4 years old and said by good Jack men to be one of the first boned Jacks in Kentucky. His actions like a horse, quick and sure. If you patronize us we will promise not to detain you long on the Jack's account.
